

Special Issue

Bank Regulation and Risk Management

Message from the Guest Editor

The COVID-19 outbreak required a quick response from regulators in order to mitigate its impact on the banking sector. Although banks entered the virus outbreak in better shape than they did the Global Financial Crisis in 2008–2009, vulnerabilities persist in several areas. This Special Issue will focus on the broad topic of “Bank Regulation and Risk Management” as it relates to the impact of the virus. We invite empirical papers that explore any aspect of the impact that the COVID-19 outbreak will have on regulation and risk management including, but not limited to, the three main areas of bank response to the virus crisis: the operational capacities of banks, the ability of financial institutions to use capital and liquidity buffers, and the regulation and risk management concerning asset quality.
