

Special Issue

Economic and Financial Implications of COVID-19

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, we want to encourage scholars to look into problems of society from different, not only economic, perspectives. We want to explore the damaging effect of COVID-19 on economies, companies, municipalities (acting under fiscal constraints of debt capacity), and sectors. Additionally, we want to explore paths to recovery and the new opportunities that this crisis brings to our (as we believed) already very developed civilization. This Issue is especially interested in the topic of financial stability in developed and emerging economies. Furthermore, we are interested in information disclosures of firms and subsequent related market reactions. We invite authors to contribute original research articles in theory and practice. All submissions must contain original unpublished work not being considered for publication elsewhere. Submissions are also open to scholars and participants of the conference IFRS Global Rules and Local Use—Beyond the Numbers 2021 organized jointly by the Metropolitan University Prague and the Anglo-American University in Prague.
