

Special Issue

Foreign Direct Investment

Message from the Guest Editor

The focus of this Special Issue will be on original empirical research addressing the relationship between foreign direct investment (FDI) inflows and a host country's exports. Although there is extensive literature on the subject, as evidenced by Kastratović (2020) in his recent meta-analysis, the effects of foreign direct investment on host country exports remain ambiguous, which justifies further investigation and thus this topic being the focus of this Special Issue. Following Kastratović (2020)'s suggestions, this Special Issue will consider papers relying on time series or panel data, which focus on individual countries or on a relatively homogeneous sample of countries. Firm-level studies and studies focusing on individual sectors, notably the primary sector and services, are also welcome. Moreover, studies that address this issue (by differentiating between direct and indirect effects of FDI) are particularly encouraged.
