Feature Papers on Economics and Finance

Message from the Guest Editor

The Economics and Finance section welcomes the submission of high-quality papers with a primarily empirical focus on various aspects of economics and finance, including corporate finance, asset pricing, and the use of high frequency data and finance microstructures, as well as their contributions to systemic risk in the markets in which they operate. The Economics and Finance section is open to publishing new and challenging studies focusing on a single country or a group of countries. Although the main focus of the section will be on empirical and theoretical papers of high quality, policy-oriented research papers will also be considered.
