Feature Papers on Financial Markets

Message from the Guest Editor

This Topical Collection “Feature Papers on Financial Markets” collects leading research (original research articles or comprehensive review papers) on all aspects of financial markets. Waivers or discounts on article processing charges (APC) will be granted to high-quality papers submitted to this collection. Highly experienced practitioners from various fields on financial markets are welcome to contribute papers, highlighting the latest developments in their research area, or a detailed summary of their own work to date.

Potential topics include but are not limited to portfolio optimization, asset management, asset pricing and trading, investment, market microstructure, and their contributions to the stability and operation of securities markets and financial intermediation.
