

Special Issue

Risk of Artificial Intelligence and International Business

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue intends to set a new research agenda for studying international business operations and the risk of adopting AI. The object of this Special Issue is to open a scholarly discussion on international business factors that interfaces with the dark side of AI. The call for papers is open to a wide range of scholarship scopes and different methodological approaches, including qualitative, quantitative, mixed-methods, and theoretical/conceptual papers. Potential topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Risk of adopting AI for everyday life business operations;
- Risks of adopting AI for fintech;
- Risks of selecting personnel via AI;
- Service failure risks in adopting AI for global markets;
- Financial crisis and AI for stocks forecasting;
- Financial risks in algorithm trading;
- International human resource management risk and AI;
- International business decision-makers resist the adoption of AI.
