Financial Management

Message from the Guest Editor

We invite scholars, practitioners, and industry experts to submit articles for our upcoming topic on “Financial Management”. Financial management is the process of managing an organisation’s financial resources to ensure their effective and efficient use. Against this backdrop, managers of organisations must develop and implement financial plans that align with the organisation’s goals. These financial plans include (i) creating budgets (ii) forecasting cash flows, and (iii) analysing financial statements to identify areas where the organisation can improve its financial performance.

We welcome both theoretical and empirical contributions on the various aspects of financial management practises. Our goal is to foster discussions on how financial management can support the growth and sustainability of organisations. We are particularly interested in studies that present innovative approaches, strategies, and policies aimed at building sustainable financial management systems within organisations.

We look forward to receiving your valuable contributions to this important topic.
