

Special Issue

The Role of Public Finances in the COVID-19 Crisis

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses broadly on the role that different institutions can or should play in the crisis that we are currently experiencing due to Covid-19. In this Special Issue we intend to compile papers related to this fact in a broad sense. Some examples of lines of interest may be the consequences that this crisis is having on the economy, on institutions, etc.; how countries are managing this crisis; how companies and/or public institutions are acting; and, in general, what is the role of public finances in this crisis. There will be room for historical analyses but also for future ones, which will analyse case studies or comparative, analytical and/or descriptive studies. We believe that any learning derived from the current situation may be useful for public and private managers both in the immediate future and in looking ahead. Prof. Dr. María-Dolores Guillamón
