

Special Issue

Economics of Water - Scarcity, Sustainability and Scientific Solutions

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on the key areas of concerns in “Water Economics”. It aims to include novel research and analysis of how water and waste in water have a significant impact on human health, the environment, and economic growth. The submissions include theoretical and empirical articles in a range of areas of water economics—shift of trade and production across the world from high-water-efficient countries to low-water-efficient countries, management of scarce water resources, disposal of waste into the water stream, management of waste in water, water trading, water markets, water policies, and past and future challenges confronting the water sector.
