

Special Issue

Digital for Sustainable Development—Trends in Finance and Business

Message from the Guest Editor

The present Special Issue intends to highlight the main new movements that have occurred in the area of business and finance in order to promote the sustainable digital development of the whole of society. First of all, the present call intends to highlight the main sustainable goals, including the digital goals, the role of knowledge in digital sustainability, and the relationship between digital sustainability and innovation. Another aim of this Special Issue is to enhance the role of digital finance in the attainment of the digital sustainable development goals. Cryptocurrencies will be analyzed. We are also concerned with Fintech, Regtech, digital security issue and strategies. A third topic is dedicated to financial inclusion and financial education, particularly their application as tools with which to achieve the financial sustainable goals. The fourth topic is dedicated to enhancing the role of corporate governance in adopting the best practices in business, including social and environmentally responsible investments. The adoption of corporate social responsibility in business in times of crisis is another topic of focus.
