

Special Issue

Commercial Banking and FinTech in Emerging Economies

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will feature original research papers on all banking roles in emerging countries, including the challenges brought about by blockchain technology and FinTech. Therefore, high-quality articles that introduce new theoretical and applicable notions in banking and blockchain technology (in both the developed and developing world), alongside related topics, are highly encouraged. Submitted articles should be written in non-technical language so that people outside related disciplines may understand them.
