Systemic Recovery: Lessons from COVID-19, Modeling, Analysis, and Policy Implications

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will focus on (i) lessons from the pandemic, in particular the effectiveness of policy responses in different countries, (ii) new integrated modeling approaches that have emerged from the crisis; and (iii) recommendations to build a more resilient system to protect ourselves from such events in the future. Relevant topics to be addressed include the merging of social mixing and economic data in integrated epidemiological-economic models; the disconnect between financial markets and the broader economy during the COVID crisis; the role of public and private debt during the recovery; the nature of work and changes in productivity; and the investment necessary to radically change the course of our system to prepare it for climate crises.
