

Special Issue

Cultural Landscapes: Education and Citizen Participation for Their Recovery and Conservation

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to compile original research articles and review articles that provide knowledge in relation to the following questions:

Provide adequate education and training of the population to act on the landscape with the implications that these entail for its totality, as well as their capacity to reflect on the actions that can be implemented to not only avoid the degradation and deterioration of landscapes, but also to enhance their wellbeing.

Promote sustainable tourism that favours the economic development of the territories, while guaranteeing the conservation of landscapes and the integration between tradition and modernity.

This Special Issue will welcome manuscripts that link the following themes:

The protection of the landscape as a cultural asset;
Landscape and its education;
Landscape education;
Examples of sustainable planning and management;
Landscape and citizen participation;
Controversial landscapes;
Heritage education and tourism.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
