

Special Issue

Sustainable Urban Planning and Development for Resilient and Equitable Communities

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of the journal Land aims to advance knowledge of urban planning and development under the premises of sustainability, resilience, and social equity, with a combination of theoretical and pragmatic research, literature reviews, and case studies from any part of the world, past or present, in order to envision a better future for all. The goal of this Special Issue is to gather together papers that provide insights into urban planning and development based on the three premises highlighted in the title: sustainability, resilience, and social equity. This topic is fully aligned with Land's aims and scope, which focus on planning and development, including in urban contexts.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant Impact Factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years.
