

Special Issue

Sustainable Land Management in Times of Climate Extremes – Adaptations, Institutional Frameworks, Farmer Behaviour, and Community Empowerment

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to deepen our understanding of how land managers are coping with the dynamically changing resilience of agriculture to climate extremes. We cordially invite papers analysing the links between agriculture, social space, and environmental aspects of sustainable land management. Finally, we would like to hear more about how to involve local stakeholders and citizens in decision-making through public engagement, such as citizen science projects.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
