

Special Issue

Resilient or Transformative? Contemporary Food Systems within an Evolving Policy Landscape

Message from the Guest Editors

Against this complex background, the aim of this Special Issue is to gather valuable contributions that would advance knowledge and learning on sustainable food systems and practices by investigating the role of both well-established policies (e.g., agricultural policies, rural development programs, spatial strategies) and innovative initiatives (urban food policies, climate adaptation plans, etc.) – with special regard to the implications for land use change, agroecosystem management, landscape conservation, and territorial governance.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
