Sustainable Rural Development: Strategies, Good Practices, and Opportunities ☒

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent decades, rural areas on a global scale have suffered severe demographic losses and are tending to depopulate as a result of the process of structural ageing and emigratory movements (rural–urban). In some territories, this has led to the abandonment of numerous villages and the proliferation of territories without economic activities with serious socio-economic and environmental results. The objective of this Special Issue is to study this problem with contributions to reduce the imbalances between rural and urban areas or studies that highlight the weaknesses of certain projects since scientific, holistic and multidisciplinary knowledge. This Special Issue encourages the following topics

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
