Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is expected to provide a forum for discussing the above issues and address graduate students, language teachers and teacher trainers, researchers, test writers, exam designers and policy-makers, administrators, and school program planners who are responsible for language assessment.

We warmly welcome researchers, research students, and practitioners to submit proposals on topics including, but not limited to:

- Alternative assessment paradigms and methods.
- Test washback/impact on teaching and learning.
- Language assessment literacy.
- Collaborations across stakeholder groups.
- The intersection between learning and assessment.
- Multilingual assessment and assessment in multilingual contexts.
- Developments in theory and practice of formative assessment.
- Assessments and tests with language learners with special needs.
- Assessing language skills (e.g., reading, writing) and language elements (e.g., grammar)
- The relationship between assessment, feedback, and learning.
- E-assessment.
- Assessment needs and practices in the context of COVID-19.
