Current Trends in Ecolinguistics

Message from the Guest Editor

In this Special Issue, we focus on research that highlights current trends in ecolinguistics (Finke 2018; Lechevrel 2009; Huang 2016). We welcome contributions from a broad range of ecolinguistic topics, that focus, for example, on the following topics:

Language and the non-human world;
Language and natural connections (Alexander 2008);
Language and environmental sustainability (Alexander 2002; Caimotto 2020);
Environmental discourse in Media (Döring, Penz, and Trampe 2008; Xue and Xu 2021; Goatly 2002);
Eco-criticism;
Eco-politics;
Eco-literature;
(Eco)- linguistic anthropology;
Ecological education (Cachelin; Norvell; and Darling 2010);
The ecology of language (Finke 2014);
The need for new (eco-)terms/terminology;
Deep ecology (Naess 1975);
Positive (Eco)- discourse analysis (Stibbe 2017).

The purposes of this Special Issue are to contribute to the ongoing elaboration of ecolinguistic research in these areas, to outline methodological approaches for ecolinguistic research, to carry forward the themes of past Ecolinguistic research, and develop new and inspiring perspectives for future projects.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Languages (ISSN 2226-471X) is now in its eighth year since its inception in 2015. It is an Open Access journal which seeks to stimulate debates on key issues in languages and linguistics. We welcome papers at the cutting edge of different fields, ranging from applied linguistics to descriptive and theoretical linguistics. Submissions may consist of research articles and critical reviews as well as proposals for Special Issues where multi-disciplinary approaches and different perspectives on current issues are explored. We invite you to consider Languages as a forum for sharing your work.
