Mind Your Manner Adverbials!

Message from the Guest Editors

The research project Mind you manner adverbials! (MiMa), carried out at Utrecht University, addresses this major research question and tries to develop a deeper understanding of the grammatical nature of MA's in collaboration with experts at partner universities. Questions that are addressed include the following: What is the structural composition of MAs? To what extent do superficially different MA expressions (e.g., 'with care', 'carefully') have a uniform syntax? What kind of grammatical behavior (e.g., word order) do MA expressions display in interaction with their structural environment? How are they integrated into larger syntactic structures? What is the inner structure, distribution and semantic–pragmatic behavior of pro-forms such as 'so', 'thus', and 'how'? To what extent are languages or varieties of a single language (dialects) similar/different as regards the inner and outer syntax of MA expressions? To what extent are manner-adverbial expressions similar to/different from other types of adverbial expressions (e.g., locative, temporal, degree)?

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Languages (ISSN 2226-471X) is now in its eighth year since its inception in 2015. It is an Open Access journal which seeks to stimulate debates on key issues in languages and linguistics. We welcome papers at the cutting edge of different fields, ranging from applied linguistics to descriptive and theoretical linguistics. Submissions may consist of research articles and critical reviews as well as proposals for Special Issues where multi-disciplinary approaches and different perspectives on current issues are explored. We invite you to consider Languages as a forum for sharing your work.
