Social and Psychological Factors in Bilingual Speech Production

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite submissions which examine the role of psychological and/or social factors on bilingual speech production. We interpret bilingualism in its broadest sense and the Special Issue will include work on bilingual first language acquisition as well as second language acquisition across speech contexts. Such contexts may include, but need not be limited to:

- heritage-language speakers
- minority-language bilinguals
- new speakers
- contexts of tutored and naturalistic second language acquisition
- instances of language attrition

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Languages (ISSN 2226-471X) is now in its eighth year since its inception in 2015. It is an Open Access journal which seeks to stimulate debates on key issues in languages and linguistics. We welcome papers at the cutting edge of different fields, ranging from applied linguistics to descriptive and theoretical linguistics. Submissions may consist of research articles and critical reviews as well as proposals for Special Issues where multi-disciplinary approaches and different perspectives on current issues are explored. We invite you to consider Languages as a forum for sharing your work.
