Message from the Guest Editors

The world is in great turmoil.

This is partly the result of decades of sustained neoliberal policies, as a result of which the ruling class of entrepreneurs have been given absolute license to reform the world into a system where everything and everyone has become a function of their selfish pursuit of ever-greater wealth, to which all other societal values have been systematically sacrificed.

A silver lining to the dark clouds that are engulfing the world is that, for a number of years now, there has been a growing backlash against the destructive forces of economic neoliberalism, albeit that this backlash is mainly limited to protest movements by young people (among others) on the one hand, and to work in the academic sphere on the other.

This call for papers addresses the latter group of academics who are invited to submit papers representing the fruit of their respective research in this area. The call focuses on critical research on the prevailing socio-economic order and the economic policies that underlie it.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
