AI and Its Influence: Legal and Religious Perspectives

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues: Artificial Intelligence (AI) is set to transform the world(s) in which we live. In many ways, it already has. Law and religion have long been considered world-creating phenomena, albeit in distinct (and sometimes overlapping) ways. The impact of AI's ascendency on legal systems and on religion is under-explored, and thus this Special Issue seeks to fill that gap. We are particularly interested in assembling a Special Issue that features the work of scholars from a range of fields (law, religious studies, computer science, philosophy, anthropology, among others), as well as diverse geographic and religious contexts.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
