Disability Rights and the Law: Ensuring Equal Access and Inclusion for Persons with Disabilities Around the World

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue on “Disability Rights and the Law: Ensuring Equal Access and Inclusion for Persons with Disabilities around the World” seeks to critically investigate both the gaps and successes in ensuring equal access and inclusion for persons with disabilities around the world. Contributions are invited from scholars, legal practitioners, and advocates. Articles may be international, comparative, or local in scope, and may look at disability rights overall or at specific aspects of the law, such as access to justice and legal capacity, nondiscrimination in the workplace and employment law, freedom from violence and abuse, or asylum-seekers and refugee law. Contributors may also investigate the law in relation to specific identities, such as women and girls with disabilities or Indigenous persons with disabilities, as well as specific disability types, such as persons with intellectual disabilities or persons with psychiatric disabilities. Contributions that challenge and seek to remedy injustices against persons with disabilities are particularly welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
