

Special Issue

An Evaluation of Gang Intervention Strategies

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue invites contributions from studies on gang intervention and prevention approaches outside of the United States. This issue is open to intervention/prevention approaches that are embedded in the criminal justice system (e.g., the wrap-around method) or novel approaches outside of the justice system that have been evaluated, while acknowledging the pitfalls of the system as it relates to handling gang members and perceived gang members throughout the system.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
