

Special Issue

Privacy and Security during the Times of the Corona-Pandemic

Message from the Guest Editor

Covid-19 is changing the world. Not only does this pandemic challenge our daily lives in so many ways, it also impacts lawmakers, businesses, and politics. Will we be able to move beyond this crisis and still maintain many of the rights that we have enjoyed as private citizens in the past?

This Special Issue intends to cover current legal and ethical issues relating to the corona pandemic, including international, federal, regional, and local policy making; healthcare-related medical and privacy challenges; and company policies to protect both customers and employees, without overstepping ethical boundaries. We welcome contributions in these areas, including research-, theoretical-, policy-, and practice-based articles.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
