

Special Issue

Securitization and Financial Innovation in a Post Crisis World

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue provides an appraisal of the impact of FinTech in the securitization process taking into account the regulatory developments of securities and secured transactions. The impact of these technological developments on financial services is a new area of research. The Issue will contribute to the existing literature of securitization, financial innovation and capital markets. We welcome contributions in the following areas: (1) the relationship between the new financial technologies and securitization; (2) the implications of FinTech for financial services; (3) the regulatory developments of securitization and financial technology; (4) consumer and investor protection in the aftermath of new financial technologies. Review and reform of these wide areas of law can represent a significant undertaking, in particular for financial technologies.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
