Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue arises from the need for a gendered approach, both in the clinical setting and in therapeutic regimens, sharing results from clinical and preclinical studies.

Original research articles, reviews, and short reports on various aspects of gender-specific medicine (cardiology, pneumology, endocrinology, oncology, dermatology, infectious disease, geriatrics and aging, gastroenterology, and neurology) and pharmacology (clinical and preclinical studies) are welcome, in order to create interdisciplinary consensus from a gender perspective.
