Dear Colleagues,

The Special Issue: Frontiers in tissue injury and regeneration/repair will collect the research articles or reviews about the injury mechanism of important human tissues and organs (for example, heart, liver, lung, etc.) and the functional remodeling process after injury, especially focusing on the immune microenvironment formed by immune cells such as macrophages, innate lymphoid cells, T cells and so on. Of course other immune cells or molecule-mediated damage and repair are also encouraged.

We invite suggestions for manuscripts to be included in this special issue. Please contact the editors before preparing the manuscript for a pre-arrangement of the topic.
