Advances in Wildlife Behavior and Biodiversity

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Life, 'Wildlife Behavior and Biodiversity', is linked with the Convention on Biological Diversity. Biodiversity is the variability in all organisms living on Earth in the various ecosystems and ecological complexes in which they are pieces. It also concerns the diversity within species (genetic diversity) and the behaviors associated with it, especially by wild animals in the context of the possibility of manifesting it, coexistence with other species, and with humans. As a result of ongoing climate change and shrinking ecosystems, we can observe changes before our eyes, especially reduced biodiversity due to devastation, leading to the loss of habitats, extinction of species, and, thus, reduced animal gene pools. Often the first manifestation of this type of phenomena is a change in the behavior of wild fauna. Based on our knowledge of the natural behavior of these changes and anomalies, it is possible to improve the welfare of animals and prevent human–wild–animal conflicts. Research articles, review articles, and communications are invited.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Life (ISSN 2075-1729) is an international, peer-reviewed open access journal that publishes scientific studies related to fundamental themes in life sciences. Some papers are published individually, while others are submitted for inclusion in special issues with guest editors. You are invited to contribute a research article, essay, or a review to be considered for publication.

Editor-in-Chief
