Stem Cell and Developmental Biology: At the Interface of Differentiation and Morphogenesis

Message from the Guest Editors

Developmental biology has been fundamental in determining the properties that shape multicellular organisms. Cell fate decisions drive differentiation, while diverse cell interactions – adhesion, signalling exchange and migration – drive the morphogenetic movements and tissue forces that shape organs in space and time. Stem cells are critical in orchestrating developmental decisions, from establishing cell lineages during embryogenesis to supporting tissue maintenance and repair in the adult. Elucidating these dynamic processes also has implications in understanding responses to injury and disease, and in developing regenerative and therapeutic strategies. At the interface of differentiation and morphogenesis, we invite contributions on themes including: Gene regulatory networks and epigenetics; Signalling and cell-cell interactions; Tissue mechanics and mechanotransduction; Germ cells and reproduction; Tissue aging; Evolution of developmental control. ## About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Life (ISSN 2075-1729) is an international, peer-reviewed open access journal that publishes scientific studies related to fundamental themes in life sciences. Some papers are published individually, while others are submitted for inclusion in special issues with guest editors. You are invited to contribute a research article, essay, or a review to be considered for publication.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, CAPIus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Paleontology)
