Innovation and Translation in Cardiovascular Interventions

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to announce the launch of a Special Issue entitled “Innovation and Translation in Cardiovascular Interventions.” This Special Issue will focus on the field of cardiovascular therapy, spanning the full spectrum from preclinical discovery to real-world clinical application. Cardiovascular interventions continue to evolve rapidly, driven by technological breakthroughs, novel device development, pharmacologic innovation, and an improved understanding of pathophysiology. This Special Issue aims to showcase original research that highlights how innovative strategies are improving patient outcomes and translating into practice. We invite contributions on topics including (but not limited to) the following: Development and evaluation of new interventional devices and technologies, Image-guided and physiology-guided percutaneous procedures, Drug–device combinations and bioresorbable platforms, Translational research bridging preclinical and clinical cardiovascular science, Novel pharmacologic approaches supporting interventional strategies, Advances in structural heart interventions, Artificial intelligence and digital health applications in interventional cardiology.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Life (ISSN 2075-1729) is an international, peer-reviewed open access journal that publishes scientific studies related to fundamental themes in life sciences. Some papers are published individually, while others are submitted for inclusion in special issues with guest editors. You are invited to contribute a research article, essay, or a review to be considered for publication.
