

Special Issue

Advances in Sheet Metal Forming Processes of Lightweight Alloys, 2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on the characterization techniques and advanced predictive models developed for such processes. Papers from various disciplines with a common theme of metal forming are invited and may fall under (although they are not limited to) the following topics:

- Advanced FE simulations of metal-forming processes;
- Post-form strength characterization and modeling;
- Heat transfer characterization and modeling;
- Friction, wear, and lubrication characterization and modeling;
- Formability, necking, and failure prediction;
- Novel experimental techniques for metal forming process characterization;
- Measurement systems for extracting valuable data from metal forming processes;
- Data-driven techniques for process development.
