Advanced Research on Information System Security and Privacy, 2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to announce this Special Issue of the journal Mathematics entitled “Advanced Research on Information System Security and Privacy, 2nd Edition”. As new technologies emerge and threats become more sophisticated, there is a constant need for advanced research and innovative solutions to safeguard sensitive information and ensure user privacy. This Special Issue aims to address these challenges by providing a forum for a diverse audience to discuss how to mitigate information risks, stay abreast of the latest developments, and publish a range of articles that cater to a broad cross-sectoral and multi-disciplinary readership. The main topics of this Special Issue include but are not limited to, the following: information systems security, privacy-preserving technologies, cryptography and security, digital forensics, artificial intelligence security, and adversarial explainable AI.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The journal Mathematics publishes high-quality, refereed papers that treat both pure and applied mathematics. The journal highlights articles devoted to the mathematical treatment of questions arising in physics, chemistry, biology, statistics, finance, computer science, engineering and sociology, particularly those that stress analytical/algebraic aspects and novel problems and their solutions. One of the missions of the journal is to serve mathematicians and scientists through the prompt publication of significant advances in any branch of science and technology, and to provide a forum for the discussion of new scientific developments.
