

Special Issue

Applications of Data Envelopment Analysis and Econometrics

Message from the Guest Editor

Development and implementation of innovative technologies in the economy have led to a profound qualitative change in connections and structures of complex socio-economic system functioning. In addition, the tools that allow analyzing existing and finding new relationships in the economy are being improved. Thus, this Special Issue is devoted to the study of socio-economic system analysis using modern mathematical methods and models. In particular, articles focusing on the development and application of new mathematical models and methods with their application to the analysis of real problems are welcome. In addition, review articles which show the current practice and areas of application of individual mathematical methods and models, as well as identify promising areas of their application, will be of particular interest.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The journal Mathematics publishes high-quality, refereed papers that treat both pure and applied mathematics. The journal highlights articles devoted to the mathematical treatment of questions arising in physics, chemistry, biology, statistics, finance, computer science, engineering and sociology, particularly those that stress analytical/algebraic aspects and novel problems and their solutions. One of the missions of the journal is to serve mathematicians and scientists through the prompt publication of significant advances in any branch of science and technology, and to provide a forum for the discussion of new scientific developments.
