Advances in Public Health and Healthcare Management for Chronic Care

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will focus on the management of chronic diseases. Systematic/scoping/narrative reviews or protocols of reviews related to these issues are welcome. One of the primary focuses is to identify news model of care for different chronic diseases in Medical and Nursing practice. These approaches should promote an improving satisfaction for patients and the community. In chronic care, the personalized management of care improves clinical and psychosocial outcomes, and innovative models have been recommended in several areas of clinical practice, with significantly positive results in the quality of care and patient satisfaction, emphasizing the individual needs of each patient, and directing care in this same direction. Topics of interest include, but are not limited, to the following:

- Investigation based on practice and personalized care approaches in chronic care;
- New managed models in chronic diseases or other condition with long-term care;
- Studies investigating promotion of care;
- Nurse-led care;
- Intervention for the management of chronic diseases;
- New approaches of chronic care;
- Health Economics evaluation.
