Colorectal carcinoma is a significant cause of cancer-related morbidity and mortality worldwide. Newer technologies, with the advent of laparoscopic surgery, have shown promising results and are increasingly being adopted across many centers. In this Special Issue of Medicina, titled “Novel Insights in Laparoscopic Surgery of Colorectal Carcinoma,” we aim to publish studies that provide new perspectives on the laparoscopic management of colorectal cancer. Clinical and experimental research, including original articles/reviews/systematic reviews, is welcome.
