Recent Advances in Health Improvement Strategies

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will bring to the fore and highlight major current developments in health services and improvement strategies in Europe and around the world. It aims to foster the uptake of research and evidence-based innovations in all areas of science that contribute to health and wellbeing through better health services. It will further emphasise the link between research and practice by gathering together a wide range of papers related to research on health practice and policy. The contributors will come from an impressive range of allied disciplines, offering valuable insights into many different settings. Adopting thus a cross-disciplinary approach, this Special Issue will represent many strands of interest including Medicine, Primary Care, Nursing, Mental Health, Public Health, Clinical Trials as well as Health Economics, Health Management, Medical Statistics, Social Science and Health, Health Policy and Systems, Psychology and Implementation Research.
