Advances in European Electrochemistry

Message from the Guest Editor

This issue is oriented towards the publication of articles devoted to deep analyses of the underlying processes, including mechanisms of coupled electrochemical and/or chemical processes and accompanying physicochemical phenomena in relation to chemical power sources of various types and destinations, description of homogeneous or/and heterogeneous catalytic processes, trans membrane transport of components of electrolyte solutions of both electrodes across the separator, and optimization of functional and construction materials of these systems.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to molecular chemistry, now in its 30th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts, and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on all major fields of molecular chemistry and multidisciplinary topics bridging chemistry with biology, physics, and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting-edge fields in all of these areas.
