Microwave Chemistry in China

Message from the Guest Editor

It is our pleasure to announce the launch of a new Special Issue of Molecules on “Microwave Chemistry in China”. This Special Issue invites important contributions describing advances in the use of microwave in the fields of chemistry, medicine, biomedical science, and materials, and engineering. The journal covers microwave-assisted synthesis of novel organic, organometallic, and inorganic molecules or complexes, kinetics and mechanistic studies of microwave-induced chemical reactions, and potential use of microwave irradiation in the fields of drug discovery, green chemistry, catalysis materials, and industrial process development.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to molecular chemistry, now in its 30th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts, and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on all major fields of molecular chemistry and multidisciplinary topics bridging chemistry with biology, physics, and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting-edge fields in all of these areas.
