Analytical Aspects in Environmental Pollution Monitoring

Message from the Guest Editors

Environmental analysis is one of the most relevant scientific fields in chemistry that contributes to the monitoring of environmental pollution. Green methodologies should be developed and applied in order to investigate the pollution impact on the environment. The scope of this issue is to describe the state of the art in both analysis and sample pretreatment with regard to the demands of green perspectives for the examination of the current status of environmental pollution. Analytical scientists are invited to present their new strategies to fulfill all the requirements for reduction of waste, energy consumption, use of solvents, etc.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.

Editor-in-Chief

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, MEDLINE, PMC, Reaxys, CaPlus / SciFinder, MarinLit, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q2 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 16.1 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.6 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
