Nutrition and Lifestyle Influences on Age-Related Frailty and Sarcopenia

Message from the Guest Editor

Aging is associated with an increased risk of frailty and sarcopenia, conditions that significantly impact mobility, independence, and overall quality of life. This Special Issue of Nutrients aims to explore the complex interplay between diet, physical activity, and other lifestyle behaviors in relation to frailty and sarcopenia in aging populations. We welcome original research articles, systematic reviews, and meta-analyses that investigate key topics, including (but not limited to) the following:

- The role of protein intake, amino acid supplementation, and dietary patterns in muscle mass preservation.
- The impact of micronutrients, antioxidants, and antiinflammatory diets on sarcopenia progression.
- Lifestyle interventions combining nutrition, exercise, and behavioral strategies to prevent frailty.
- The gut-muscle axis and the influence of the microbiome on muscle health.
- The effects of intermittent fasting, caloric restriction, and other dietary approaches on muscle function.
