

Special Issue

New Perspective on Nutrient Intake and Cardiovascular Disease Risk

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims to present new perspectives on how nutrient intake, assessed through advanced measurement tools and analyzed using cutting-edge statistical and artificial intelligence (AI)/machine learning, influences cardiovascular disease risk. Topics of interest include heart failure (including HFrEF, HFmrEF, and HFpEF), stroke (ischemic and hemorrhagic), and peripheral arterial disease. We welcome high-quality original research articles, review papers, and novel methodological studies that expand our understanding of diet-related cardiovascular health through innovative conceptual frameworks and longitudinal analytical approaches.
