Diet and Supplements in the Prevention and Treatment of Eye Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

Dietary modification and nutritional supplementation for the prevention and treatment of these conditions have attracted considerable scientific attention. It is well known that for individuals with diabetes, maintaining stable blood sugar levels through diet and lifestyle measures is crucial in preventing and treating diabetic retinopathy. A large body of scientific evidence supports the role of supplements and diet rich in antioxidants, such as vitamins C and E, zinc, lutein, zeaxanthin and omega-3 fatty acids, in reducing the risk of AMD or slowing its progression. Research on the role of diet and supplements in treating other conditions such as cataracts, glaucoma and dry eye has received increasing attention in recent years. I warmly welcome short communications, original research articles and review articles related to this topic.
