Feature Articles in Cardiovascular Pathophysiology

Message from the Guest Editors

Cardiovascular diseases (CVDs) remain the leading cause of global morbidity and mortality, encompassing a spectrum of disorders affecting the heart and circulatory system. This Special Issue intends to collect high-quality original research studies, reviews, and short communications, with a focus on vascular dysfunction, cardiac remodeling, inflammatory mechanisms, and their interplay in disease progression. By highlighting cutting-edge discoveries and insights, this Special Issue aims to bridge basic science with clinical applications, offering valuable perspectives for researchers and clinicians dedicated to improving cardiovascular health outcomes. We look forward to receiving your contributions.
