COVID-19: What Happens in Pediatric Research in the Era of Pandemic

Message from the Collection Editor

We would like to invite you to share with our medical and pediatric community your findings and interpretations stemming from the world that COVID-19 has plunged us into. Papers focused on how pediatric practice has been changed by the pandemic, what we have “discovered” may be further changed, what we realize we may consider no more a “must” and comparisons thereof are invited, as well as papers on how technology has helped us to deal with patients with rare diseases or complex care needs. Extraordinary times lead to extraordinary measures, and bright minds discover new ways to achieve what can no longer be achieved through established means. It is our pleasure to invite you to share all your new discoveries of “untrodden paths” in the field of healthcare with our readers.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Pediatric Reports (PR) journal is a publishing platform for all topics concerning pediatrics, from basic research to bedside care. We aim at targeting a composite audience, from experienced pediatricians to young residents and fellows. Clinical observation of unusual cases will find their tribune, as well as trial reports and results of research related to diseases that may represent frequent or rare events faced by Pediatricians. We look forward to continuing the work done in the past years by Pediatric Reports, but also make the journal grow according to changing expectations and attitudes of both, clinicians and researchers who work for more effective pediatric care.
