Recent Advances in Animal Models of Neuropsychiatric Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

As a of Pharmaceuticals, it is my pleasure to invite you to contribute to the current Special Issue, which will focus on recent advances in animal models of neuropsychiatric diseases. We invite the submission of original research and reviews that describe novel approaches and updates to animal models of neuropsychiatric diseases. Contributions should align with the general scope of Pharmaceuticals, which includes modelling psychiatric symptoms and describing drug responses in neuropsychiatric diseases defined by the DSM-5. However, innovative and interdisciplinary approaches are welcomed and encouraged, and it is our goal to establish the exchange of high-quality scientific information between experts.
