State of Art in Protein Degraders and Autophagy Modulators in the Cancer Treatment

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue invites international researchers in the area of new strategies to induce targeted protein degradation and modulate autophagy in therapeutic, authentic models. We welcome original research articles and reviews focused on the identification of natural and synthetic pharmacological leads from HTS campaigns, on the rational design and structure–activity relationships of small molecules, alternative systems to deliver pro-drugs, and preclinical evaluation of promising leads. I look forward to receiving your contributions.
