

Special Issue

Inorganic Biomaterials for Drug Delivery

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite you to contribute a full article, short communication, or review article to a Special Issue entitled “Inorganic Biomaterials for Drug Delivery”.

This Special Issue calls for studies on the design and formulation of novel dosage forms, including their characterization and drug release evaluation, as well as their biocompatibility and bioavailability (in vitro and/or in vivo tests). We also extend the invitation to researchers investigating the adsorption and release of drugs from excipients using computational calculations. This strategy provides important information at the atomistic level through static or dynamic calculations of the complexes.

Our final scope is to provide an overview of the latest advances in the field of pharmaceutical technology, including all steps from the design to the application of drug delivery systems, and future directions of the use of inorganic excipients for medical applications.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
