Recent Advances in Injectable Formulations

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue on injectable formulations—one of the most important types of formulation for a variety of biological modalities. This formulation approach contains options for delivery designs that ease the life of patients, e.g., long-acting injectables for systemic or local treatment administered intramuscularly or intravitreally.

Innovations such as nanotechnology, biodegradable polymers, and bioresponsive delivery systems are paving the way in personalized medicine, enabling tailored treatments. This Special Issue highlights recent advances in the field of injectable formulations defined in a broad context. This Special Issue aims to present some of the recent research within the field of injectable formulations, such as research on the formulation, formulation-driven pharmacokinetics, and manufacturing methods. I look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Pharmaceutics (ISSN 1999-4923) is an online open access journal on the science and technology of pharmaceuticals and biopharmaceuticals. The scientific community, the wider community and the general public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as a paper is published; this open access to your research ensures your findings are shared with the widest possible audience. Please consider publishing your impressive work in this high quality journal. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
